OSTRICH IS KILLED

BY SMALL BULLET

A Willow Plume Valued at $450 is Ruined When Big Bird is Acci-dentally Killed at Ostrich Furm. dentally Killed at Ostrich Farm.

A $450 willow plume was ruined Wednesday afternoon when someone shot and killed a big ostrich at the ostrich farm down the valley. The bird was one of the most valuable breeding fowls on the ranch and was valued at $450. He was nit in the head by a 22 caliber rifle ball and killed instantly. The bird was grazing in the enclosure at the ostrich farm when he was killed and the owners of the ranch have been unable to discover who did the shooting. The bird was carrying $50 worth of plumos when he was killed as he was to have been pucked this week. This is the third of the valuable birds to meet accidental deaths at the ostrich farm. Two other males caught their feet in the fence and were killed before they could be rescued, making a total loss of $1250. A reward of $50 has been offered by the company for information which will result in the arrest of the siayer of the plume producing biped.

AMUSEMENTS. ALBRIGHT COMEDY COMPANY.

The Albright Musical Comedy company apparently struck its gait Thursday night in its new bill at the Airdome, and pleased its audience in every particular. "I Should Worry" is a clean musical farce with something of a plot, and it is well presented by the entire company. Pritz Fields appears in a prominent role and works like his old self. Pritz is funny in good, straight work of this kind and ought to keep out of such stuff as the company presented for the opening bill.

J. H. Wright, Miss Ruth Albright, Earl Mack, Walter Wright and in fact, the entire company, acquit themselves with credit in the present bill and the chorus presents some strikingly good numbers in some very pretty costumes, changed frequently.

Miss Albright, in connection with her singing. Introduces some dainty dancing, and Walter Wright also does some cives steps with his song number. J. H. Wright, who is incidentally manager of the show, gives a splendid song number was a hit.

There are several features about the company that mark it as above the ordinary considers.

There are several features about the company that mark it as above the ordinary considers, in the last act. Earl Mack's characterization of a country constable is splendidly done and his song number was a hit.

ble is spiendidly done and his song number was a hit.

There are several features about the company that mark it as above the ordinary organization. Principal in contrast with many such organizations, is the absence of vulgarity in the present show; then, the English language is not murdered every minute and a half by the Albright company, and the costumes are all neat, new and pretty. Not yet have any of the costumes been duplicated and the variety of steps by the chorus has always been refreshing. The excellent work of the chorus reflects favorably on the ability of allss Chaire Davis, an El Paso girl, who is its director.

More shows of the kind of 'I Should a day.

Morry," presented in an equally capable manner, ought to make the Albright company popular with the best element of amusement seekers this summer.
